Membership of the General Assembly

- Presentation of new member Feedback EU by Yves Reichling (Feedback EU)

Yves Reichling (Feedback EU) provided an overview of Feedback EU, an environmental campaigning NGO based in the Netherlands. He explained that the organisation's scope includes farmed fish, with a particular focus on the farmed salmon supply chain. Mr Reichling outlined his role as the lead of a programme exploring farm fishing practices in Norway and West Africa. He described the organisation's work, which includes conducting investigations, producing journalistic reports, engaging in projects, and undertaking advocacy efforts. He emphasised that Feedback EU takes pride in its evidence-based approach, which underpins all aspects of its work.

- Endorsement of applications for membership:

- Safe Food Advocacy Europe (SAFE)

Luigi Tozzi (SAFE) presented an overview of Safe Food Advocacy Europe (SAFE), describing it as an EU consumer organisation dedicated to promoting civil society engagement in debates on food safety and food systems. He explained that SAFE focuses on key topics such as environmental sustainability, labelling, food security, and safety. The organisation's mission is to protect EU consumers while contributing to the fight against climate change. Mr Tozzi highlighted that one of SAFE's primary advocacy goals is to promote clear and understandable food labelling.

Based in Brussels, the organisation has a team of 12 staff members and represents 42 member organisations across 21 Member States. While the main source of funding comes from member contributions, SAFE is also actively involved in EU Horizon projects, with 11 projects currently underway. He highlighted the organisation's involvement in an algae project and its coordination of three projects addressing novel food and non-communicable diseases. He added that SAFE's Secretary General collaborates with the European Food Safety Authority. Looking ahead, the organisation plans to launch awareness campaigns on food labelling, ultra-processed foods, sustainability labelling, and non-communicable diseases. Mr Tozzi emphasised that SAFE aims to represent the voice of consumers within the MAC, underscoring the value that consumer perspectives can bring to the Advisory Council's work.

Pierre Commère (PACT'ALIM) welcomed SAFE's application, acknowledging the importance of having a consumer organisation within the MAC. Mr Commère asked whether SAFE's focus extended beyond food safety to include food security, highlighting the importance of both dimensions for the industry.

Luigi Tozzi (SAFE) confirmed that SAFE considers food safety and food security as interlinked issues, since food safety has an economic impact for farmers and fishers. Mr Tozzi highlighted that, in the previous year, there was a decrease in the purchasing power of consumers, while the administrative burden for farmers and fishers increased. Therefore, it was important to address food security to ensure the affordability of food products.

The Executive Committee endorsed Safe Food Advocacy Europe (SAFE) as a new member of the General Assembly.

- Global Dialogue on Seafood Traceability (GDST)

The Secretary General read a letter on behalf of Ms Lief Hendrikz of the Global Dialogue on Seafood Traceability (GDST). In her letter, Ms Hendrikz expressed thanks for the possibility to join the MAC, expressing willingness to add value to the Advisory Council's leadership on seafood traceability and the fight against IUU fishing. The GDST is a non-profit organisation that manages the first standard for digital interoperable traceability for the global seafood industry, shaped by industry, for industry and endorsed by the FAO. The GDST champions and advances the adoption of implementation of their standard via practical tools, dialogue, and collaboration with global industry actors, facilitators, stakeholders and software providers, alongside working governments.

GDST's Core Standard supports data sharing for the seafood industry, increasing supply chain visibility to enable collaborative action on key issues such as IUU fishing. In their view, the fourth industrial revolution is being driven by data, but the lack of a standard approach to reported data and the absence of a common software language between systems, leads this data to be inaccessible and sharing revolves around duplicated effort. Based on the GS1 framework, the GDST Core Standard is seafood-specific and related to the sharing of data relating to sustainable, ethical and responsible processes in wild-capture and aquaculture supply chains. It consists of what data needs to be captured at each stage of the supply chain and how data is shared through a common software language.

The Executive Committee endorsed Global Dialogue on Seafood Traceability (GDST) as a new member of the General Assembly.

European Parliament

- Reporting back on the joint event with the Aquaculture Advisory Council and the North Sea Advisory Council to raise awareness about the role of the Advisory Councils under the Common Fisheries Policy by Pedro Reis Santos (Secretary General)

The Secretary General outlined the event co-organised with the Aquaculture Advisory Council and the North Sea Advisory Council at the European Parliament. The aim was to introduce the role of the Advisory Councils to the new members of the Committee on Fisheries. The event was hosted by MEP Sander Smit, MEP André Rodrigues, and MEP Ana Miranda. The event included an exchange of views, which counted on interventions from representatives from the other Advisory Councils. MEP Le Callennec and MEP Junco García were also in attendance. During the exchange, the MEPs expressed their willingness to reestablish the practice of “liaison MEPs” for each Advisory Council, to ensure dialogue on fisheries and oceans-related matters. The Secretary General informed that a report summarising the event would be prepared and circulated.

Daniel Voces (Europêche), concerning the selection of hosts for the event, the request should be to the Chair of the Committee on Fisheries. If not available, then to the Vice-Chairs in their protocolar order. Mr Voces emphasised the importance of political neutrality when engaging with the European Parliament.

The Secretary General expressed understanding for the concerns of Mr Voces. The Secretary General explained that the office of MEP Sander Smit, First Vice-Chair of the Committee on Fisheries, had informally expressed interest in hosting the event. Despite requests sent to the office of the Chair of the Committee, no response was received. When approaching MEPs from other political groups, their offices expressed apprehension to co-host in an event with two EPP MEPs, which would be the case if MEP Carmen Crespo and MEP Sander Smit were both co-hosts. Therefore, the organising Secretariats agreed to proceed instead with one host MEP for each of the four political groups publicly supporting the mandate of the European Commission, while prioritising Vice-Chairs and coordinators. Unfortunately, despite several attempts, no MEP of the Renew group was available.

European Oceans Pact

- Preparation of the mandate for the High-Level Roundtable (21 February 2025)

The Secretary General provided an update on the preparation of the mandate for the upcoming High-Level Roundtable on the European Oceans Pact, scheduled for 21 February 2025. He informed that the Chairs of each Advisory Council had been invited to participate in the exchange. The roundtable invitation highlighted five key discussion points: 1) The key challenges facing the EU's ocean governance model, and the priorities for addressing these challenges; 2) The key measures needed to protect biodiversity and promote ecosystem-based management of the ocean, to sustain its climate function, health and productivity; 3) An effective marine knowledge value chain that supports EU competitiveness in ocean technologies and solutions, translated into market innovation; 4) The priorities for supporting the resilience and sustainability of coastal communities in the various sea basins of the EU; and 5) The priorities for supporting the resilience and sustainability of coastal communities in the various sea basins of the EU.

The Secretary General explained that the draft mandate, which was circulated prior to the meeting, had been prepared based on previous agreed positions of the MAC. He highlighted the challenge of preparing the mandate, as not many details on the European Oceans Pact were known yet.

Daniel Voces (Europêche) expressed concern that the European Commission could be hurrying the preparation of the European Oceans Pact to be able to present the document at the next United Nations Oceans Conference, which would take place in June 2025. Mr Voces argued that some of the points raised in section 3 about the key measures to protect biodiversity could be improved. He expressed availability to submit written amendments for the consideration of all members.

The Secretary General thanked Mr Voces for the feedback. He suggested to proceed with a written procedure to allow members to provide further feedback on the draft mandate.

Due to overlapping commitments, he was not able to attend another meeting focused on fisheries attributes.

The Secretary General informed that, at the board meeting, he asked about the inclusion of processed products in the project' scope, but the response was not entirely clear. He also asked about the coverage of economic sustainability. The coordinators responded that research on the availability of data and indicators was ongoing. He also drew attention to the importance of differentiating data from official public sources and from private initiatives.

The Secretary General informed that minutes of the meetings were prepared by the project. These could potentially be circulated, if there was agreement from the coordinators.

Participants exchanged about the public consultation on the evaluation of the Common Fisheries Policy and agreed to proceed with recommendations directly to the European Commission. The Secretariats exchanged on the preparations for the 2025 edition of the European Maritime Day. The Commission expressed interest in the organisation of another workshop about stakeholder engagement by the Advisory Councils, which should focus the European Oceans Pact as a central theme. The Oceans Pact would also be addressed at the European Ocean Days.
